

Cornerstone Welcomes J. David Knapp

Industry veteran to expand solid waste services in the Southeast

Cornerstone, a Tetra Tech Company, is pleased to announce that industry veteran J. David Knapp has joined the company. Mr. Knapp is located in the Atlanta, Georgia area and his appointment will provide a platform for expanding the company's diverse solid waste, construction, and environmental service services into the greater Southeast region.

Mr. Knapp will also provide expert landfill gas (LFG) and solid waste consulting services, and serve as program manager and technical leader. He will work closely with experts from Tetra Tech sister solid waste company AEG, as well as solid waste and environmental professionals from 58 Tetra Tech offices in the Southeast.

Mr. Knapp is an experienced senior operations professional with 38 years of demonstrated success in the environmental services industry. Skilled in all aspects of RCRA, solid waste environmental compliance, water treatment, and water quality, he joins Cornerstone after a decade leading the growth and development of landfill gas operating and consulting services in the Gulf/Southeast for a national consulting firm. He previously served as vice president and regional manager of several national consulting firms specializing in environmental and solid waste services along with landfill gas utilization.

Mr. Knapp is an expert in nurturing strong relationships with clients, and is known for his project development, execution, and support expertise. He has an MS in Environmental Systems Engineering and a BS in Chemistry.

Cornerstone welcomes Dave Knapp to the team!
